GERALDINE FARRAR
IN
"CARMEN"

THE MOST SPECTACULAR CREATION EVER ATTEMPTED IN FILMDOM—A PLAY THAT HAS ASTONISHED ALL AMERICA.

SEE WHAT THE NATION'S GREAT EDITORS SAY OF "CARMEN":

Mr. Bonfils, Denver Post: Farrar in "Carmen" carries all honors for movies in Denver.

Farrar's "Carmen" is the greatest triumph of the motion picture age.—San Francisco Call.

Kitty Kelly, Chicago Tribune: The press cannot do justice to Farrar. Her "Carmen" is a picture of finesse.

Atlanta Constitution: The witchery of Geraldine Farrar is a revelation to the screen.

W. Steven Bush, M. P. World: The elevation of "Carmen" to motion pictures places a halo upon the industry.

Solano, Boston Traveler: Miss Farrar is a fiercely sensual "Carmen."

Chas. Howard, Boston Globe: The amazing daring displayed by Miss Farrar is almost beyond comprehension.

Grenville Vernon, N. Y. Tribune: The greatest example of photo-play art ever attempted.

SCOUTMASTERS IN 3-DAY CAMP AT KAILUA; J. A. WILDER ENTHUSIASTIC

Hopes to Raise $3000 Fund and Has $1600 Already Secured to Carry on Work

Starting promptly at 3 o'clock yesterday the scoutmasters and staff officials booked for the three-day camp at Kailua, boarded the auto truck with their personal equipment and got under way with a shout. Some of their enthusiasm was caught by the crowd of spectators who had gathered when Field Commissioner James A. Wilder called for the chorus of scout motto and then the "scout habit." It was rather startling in the busiest section of Honolulu, the corner of Fort and King streets in the middle of the afternoon, to hear a score of lusty voices shout "Be Prepared!" and then, "Do a Good Turn Daily!"

There being no room in the truck for Mr. Wilder, he had to follow in his own machine accompanied by the chief executive. A twelve-minute stop was made at the home of Mrs. Hayward noted the predicament. Calling to his men to follow him, he dashed down the aisle, surrounding the machine, the men picked up the machine bodily and lifted it to a spot where it would not loosen, interlocked with trailer.

The site of the Kailua camp chosen by Mr. Wilder is in the Bellows area about twelve miles from the beach, and is reached by the road that circuits the base of the Koolau peaks that can be seen from the top of the Pall.

Nine minutes after arriving a big fire was burning, and yet there was nothing but green wood in large logs to do it with. The pitching of tents was begun in a systematic manner and the flags of the organization were planted.

"Jimmy's start.

"It's a remarkable thing how I got started in a scout work," said Mr. Wilder. "Some ten years ago I invited George Cooke to go somewhere or other with me. Oh, I can't go tomorrow evening, I have my boys' club," he replied. "Boys' club!" That was only a name to me. I asked him what he did at his boys' club. And he told me about refereeing their boxing matches, teaching them games, listening to them talk and read and teach them in debates. The idea was almost ludicrous to me then.

"Three years later I was some four miles from Liverpool on a road that had confused us somewhat, and I saw an urchin walking along. I asked him to show me the way to the city. He jumped on the running board and rode into town with us. I then offered him half a crown for his pains.

The lad was ragged, his toes were peeling out of his shoes, and it was evident that the half a crown meant a good deal to him.

"But after what was to him a great moral struggle as could be seen by the varying expressions of his features, the lad stoutly replied: 'I can't accept a tip; I'm a scout.' I was amazed and, turning to my wife, said: 'Did you hear that; what does it mean?' And then she told me what little she had heard about the scouts. I said that if there was anything on earth that would do that for a mere boy, I was for it and for it strong."

"I immediately got hold of one of those early Baden-Powell red books and began studying. I was filled with the spirit of the thing and very enthusiastic. And to this day I can't lose those feelings. It's got a tremendous hold on myself."

"Scouting is the greatest moral force in existence, and will prove itself more and more as the years roll on. I regret that I have to return to New York in a few days and be gone for some six months. But, of course, I'll be active in the work while there. Honolulu and Hawaii are doing big things in the scout movement—for it is a movement and not merely an organization—and headquarters are taking notice of us. That big rally during Carnival and this Platteville camp for scoutmasters are both done on a scale that is the envy of organizations elsewhere."

Plans for Tomorrow.

"All day tomorrow—Saturday—we will spend in a number of strenuous scout drills. Now these drills are much more than marching. Marching is only one minor feature of scout work. There are signaling, first aid problems, firemen's lift, fire drill and a host of others. Then Sunday we will engage in a few scout games that require from a half hour to an hour and a half to solve. They are quiet games, requiring much thought and ingenuity to solve. We won't be breaking the Sabbath, for while we are out here in this glorious open country, we have Superintendent Harris of Kakaako mission and about half the Y. M. C. A. staff to help us conduct religious services among ourselves. And then in the afternoon we'll pack up and return, and the men will go and do likewise with their own troops."

Mr. Wilder stated that more than $1600 had been raised since the first of the year as a direct result of his talk at the Ad Club. He intends to raise this to $3000 during the coming week so that the finances of the local council will be amply provided for during the six months' absence. "Yet scouting is a very low-costing outfit when you measure the work done and the number of boys reached with the small outlay."

For instance, the total expenditures of Honolulu area are only $400 since the first of the year."

A truck will leave Sunday morning at 7 o'clock sharp from the Metropolitan Meat Market to take out any of the scoutmasters, their assistants or any other scout officials or members of the council who desire to go and who couldn't get away Friday afternoon.

Mr. Wilder is scheduled to speak at the Rotary Club on April 13, the talk being announced as "The Effect of Jimmy's Hobby on Honolulu's Past, Present and Future, by Himself."

NEW OFFICERS OF LOCAL ELK LODGE SEATED

With Past Installed Ringer Harry E. Murray presiding, the newly-elected officers of Honolulu Lodge #16, B. P. O. E., were installed last night with appropriate ceremonies. At the close of the session refreshments were served.

The officers installed were: Exalted Ruler, Fred B. Buckley; esteemed leading knight, J. Ashman Beaven; esteemed loyal knight, James H. Fiddes; esteemed lecturing knight, C. E. Mayne Jr.; treasurer, A. J. Spitzer; tiler, L. A. C. Parham; esquire, Frank G. Dougherty; inner guard, Fred G. W. Cooper; chaplain, Clifford Spitzer; organist, E. C. Vaughan; trustee and delegate to grand lodge, C. J. McCarthy.

Arrangements for the banquet which will be held next Saturday night at the Moana hotel have been completed. It will be a star affair and an entertainment will follow. The banquet will commemorate the 45th anniversary of the local lodge, and all visiting Elks are invited.

BIG SHOWING OF ORIENTAL GOODS

Among the new features of the remodeled Yee Chan & Co. store on King street is its Oriental goods department. This addition covers the entire second floor and is devoted to the display of one of the most complete and comprehensive stocks of Chinese silks, mandarin coats, kimonos and embroideries. Every article has been reduced in price during the big reduction sale and offers irresistible bargains to Honolulu shoppers.

MORMON CONVENTION BEING HELD AT LAIE

Several hundred delegates from the various islands are gathered at Laie, Oahu, in attendance upon the convention of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The convention will come to a close tomorrow, the delegates to leave for their respective homes on Monday and Tuesday. Reports from Laie are that the new Mormon temple is rapidly taking shape. It is the second temple of its kind to be built outside of mainland America.
